

Fred Diengott is a bass/baritone who recently completed his master's degree at the Eastman School of Music. Originally from New Hampshire, he spent six of the last seven years studying classical singing in upstate New York, first at Ithaca College and then The Eastman School of Music. Fred spent the last year living and teaching English in Israel in the city of Petach Tikvah. He studied Hebrew and made a ton of new friends amongst his Israeli peers. Fred has just recently moved to Brooklyn where he intends to work in post-production audio, as well as voice acting, in addition to singing work.